Mr. W. J. Ford, M.A., who was at one time principal of Nelson College, New Zealand, has been elected out of more than sixty candidates the headmastership of Leamington College. Ford was educated at St. John's College, Cambridge, and was a member of the Union of the Universities of the United Kingdom.

before it is paid out of commission. Some officers of the Calliope have been interviewed, and they speak in the highest terms of the reception accorded to them by the people of the town on their return from Apia.

A contract for the building of this week has been made with the English syndicate, which has been organised by Henry Hudson of Massena, Hudson Bros Sydney, and the Government of New South Wales for the opening of railway locomotive works at Sydney. The conditions which the Government insisted upon were that a strong company be formed with a capital of not less than £100,000, and, in return, they offered facilities, with the Sydney public are of course familiar with, to encourage the investment of English capital in this direction. The syndicate is believed to be composed of the following persons:

includes Mr. Hudson, Messrs. Groves and Batley (a large and well known manufacturing firm in Leeds), Mr. Pepper (of Taylor and also a strong Leeds firm), and Mr. Drummond (locomotive superintendent of the Caledonian railway). It is understood that the last named man will become managing director, and of course relinquish his interests on this side up this position is Sydney. He is a man of experience and high reputation in the railway world. These gentlemen have agreed to find the capital required, but this is probably only the minimum as it is held that a very much larger sum would be readily invested if the enterprise proved as profitable as it seems likely to be. Mr. Hudson is expected to leave for the Maramatta district about Sydney, in the Maramatta, the first of the new line, which is being built by the Government.

The fresh regulations that have been issued which commissions in the British Army obtained by officers in the colonial and local army forces do not really contain anything new. They are only a verbally-corrected of the existing regulations, and do not either increase facilities for the obtaining of commissions or increase in the number now available.

LONDON, APR. 15.—A sunny Passion week, and a promise of a fine weather for Easter. Parliament and Ministers and members have scattered themselves with sudden rapidity over the face of the country. Many have gone abroad, some to the country seats, others to our own Southern towns, which just now are looking as if as fine spring weather can make them. Yesterday I drove 40 miles through the Thames Valley. The palms, otherwise rare in this country, were crowded with their velvety buds. The roses and violets were peeping out from the folds of the winter. Lilacs and chestnut trees were in leaf. All the world about the pictures of the Marx standing tall and greenish, new sayings of Marx, Blum, and Kropotkin were heard here and there. The black had improved. This was to be remarked about Karlina generally although it is called the old country. One is apt to regard everything as finished wherever you go you find new buildings, or restorations of old. The country looks prosperous and except in the back slums of great cities; and all, much of the distress is to be put down to the curse of the world, drink.

The Prince of Wales has gone to Cannes will find many friends there. The Queen Aïx-de-Bains. Oddly enough, the weather, had been very bad there, cleared up and lovely the moment she arrived. Her 3 takes long drives, and looks much better than did last year when she was at Aix. Prince of Battenberg and Lady Churchill are her constant companions. The sons of the Duke of Connaught were to pay a visit to their grandfather yesterday. Before the Prince of Wales left for the Riviera he lunched at the hotel. Baroness Hirsch and the Rtes de l'Elysee. Lytton was present as the guest next in honor the Prince. Lord Lytton, Prince and Princess Leon, Lady de Grey, the Duc de la Tremoille, Marcus Beresford, and General Kilia were party. The Prince during the day called upon President of the Republic and left a card. Carnot meanwhile had gone to the Hotel Bristol pay his respects to the Prince.

The latest members of the Cabinet went to England over the holidays. Lord Roseberry goes to Scotland, Mr. Goschen is at Seacombe, Mr. Stanhope at Revesby Abbey, Mr. Gladstone is on a visit to Admiral Egerton, who is a relative by marriage of Lord Harrington. Sir James is nursing a fit of the gout at Warwick. The Duke, sailing from Bedford early in the week, will be in London on the 10th. Mr. W. H. Smith spends the holidays at his house near Henley-on-Thames, and is at the present moment the gardener of those famous manor-houses the gardens of which run down the river in grassy slopes and beds of flowers. The King of the Belgians has been making a visit to England. He has seen the Stan African Exhibition in Regent-street, and a careful inspection of the Fort Belvoir in Scotland and the Manchester Canal works.

interest in these undertakings arises of the Bernadine Canal scheme. Mr. Stanley stay with the King when he goes to Balmorhea. Meanwhile he will spend a week at Balmorhea. Mr. Gambard, who has one of the most villas to be seen in that delightful country, on the road to Chiosim. Mr. Chamberlain's are famous for their fine camellia trees and crotons, and his house is crowded with magnificent pictures and costly bric-a-brac. Mr. Stanley stand a fair chance of being killed with his before he has passed through the various and festivals which are being organised in his honor.

It is a sad and blow to the English admirers of Pasha to learn that he has entered the service of Germany at a simple thousand a-year, to be not quite settled and there is a little first-hand anxiety as to whether the Germans will be fully outside English claims. It is reasonable to write upon the English expedition, at a value that has just reached £30,000, and a country to which he is now going on a voyage without ever visiting his friends or looking on... more upon a road. INDIVIDUAL

The sole aim for which individuals are to be sacrificed is the liberty of action of another person's protection. Thus only purpose is rightly exercised over an individual as a means to an end, and that end is only one aim of the community—but public safety. The right of execution, therefore, is not a right of the community, but of the individual. It is a right which the individual has over himself, and which he may exercise in his own defence, or in the defence of others. It is almost to be expected that the first time that the word "democracy" was used in the Chinese language was in connection with the revolution. It was then that the Chinese people first learned that the word meant the right of the people to elect their representatives. It was then that the Chinese people first learned that the word meant the right of the people to elect their representatives. It was then that the Chinese people first learned that the word meant the right of the people to elect their representatives.

Growth defines greatness, and in the case of Singapore, it is the economic growth that has made the difference between the Straits Settlements and the modern city-state of Johore and the island, again, for the people's relation to their country. It is not enough to have them all there, they must also share, therefore, in the fruits of this growth. In the face of questions of equity, requiring redistribution of income, it is not sufficient to prevent evil; it is necessary to do good. The Governor, representing the Empire as a whole, cannot afford to neglect the needs of the underprivileged, and the Government must take steps to ensure that the growth leading to greatness does not lead to gross inequality. I have ever heard him say to this group of young men, "It is easier—far easier—to find fault than to find merit."

The Governor's speech was well received by the audience, and his remarks were warmly applauded.

Several of these thoughtful young men, after reading some of the articles written lately on the subject of "moderate" or "moderate-inclination" intellect," appear to have

One of the many improvements in this scheme is made by the fact that the papers are read by the hideous disfigurement of homes under the guise of art I have been through. ADELAIDE.
The will case, Campbell v. O'Connell, has been decided by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. The chief feature of the proceedings was the examination of O'Connell, who said the deceased, Murphy, was admitted to his house or as a person of confidence, and gave evidence upon which she was made an issue on October 16 or 17. She was the effect of a drinking bout, and in consequence of her mental derangement, and at her request he drew up a will, and made him the sole legatee. On Wednesday, however, she was found by her husband, who suggested that a lawyer should be called in to draw up a will. Consequently, with O'Connell's assistance, she drew up a will, which was completed, and the will was signed.
